The candidates are just making the turn into the home stretch. Watch out for breaks.

Rutland is now like Russia: it has its mutineers. Only Rutland's mutineers are baseball players.

Those diseased cattle which the state of Vermont is alleged to have sold to a Burlington rendering plant are likely to make somebody sick even without eating them.

Someone ought to nominate John H. Senter of Montpelier as pound-keeper to make the trinity complete. John now has only the nominations for city representative and congressman.

It will be a strange situation that confronts the voters of Barre, without a Democratic candidate for city representative; especially since the city has been represented by a Democrat during the last eight years.

In the course of an article on that Vermont Governor General Ide, the Springfield, Mass., Republican pays this tribute: "To this may be added the fact that one of the leaders of the native independence party has written in private correspondence expression of regard for Governor General Ide, and declaring that he deals now impartially with the Filipinos than did his predecessors. Whatever may be the truth on this point, the fact that Judge Ide seems to have won this measure of confidence and approval among the natives is of real importance. Frequent changes in the governor generalship being far from beneficial to the islands or to this country, one could wish that the Washington government might find a way to keep Judge Ide in office for a longer period. He appears to have reached his greatest usefulness, and it is when he is most useful that he is most needed."

ARREST FOR A MERE FORMALITY.

A man has been arrested down in Lynn, Mass., as a "mere formality," according to the police chief who made the arrest. The man is the baseball pitcher who killed Thomas Burke by throwing a baseball and hitting him in the temple. The affair happened during a game of baseball, and Burke was going through one of the regular performances of a baseball game—he was batting. As those learned in baseball know, the batter has to face the pitcher and attempt to hit the ball as the pitcher propels it with all his strength. The batter is supposed to dodge if the ball shows any signs of hitting him. In the case in question Burke did not dodge in time, and received a wicked blow on the temple, dying from the effects of it a few days later. There could be no doubt that the blow was accidental and that the pitcher had no intention of killing or even hitting the batter in the head. It was simply one of the chances of the game, and those who saw the performance would probably have exonerated the pitcher from all blame. Yet the chief of police of Lynn must go through the "formality" of arresting the pitcher! Could not the innocence of the man be established without this operation of arresting him and thereby placing a stigma on his name? A little investigation beforehand would have satisfied perhaps without this "formality." The rights and feelings of people are not to be tossed about for a mere form when there is no question of innocence.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

St. Petersburg is to have a free university for women next autumn. John David Rodeffer, at present connected with the library of congress, succeeds Dr. E. U. N. Dainton to the chair of German and French in Roosevelt college.

The four new lecturers for the Columbia Law school next year as announced are: Professor Nathan Abbott of Leland Stanford university, Goldthwaite H. Dorr, Charles H. Ayres and Alfred Hayes, Jr.

Lawrence academy, one of the oldest of the old country academies, founded in 1792, will have a new head master this fall in William S. Gaud of New York, chosen to succeed H. H. Bingham. Gaud was born in Toronto of English and Scotch parentage and was educated in Illinois.

The Gokstad Ship.

The second oldest sailing craft in the world is the so called Gokstad ship, a viking craft which was discovered in a sepulchral mound on the shores of Christiania fiord and is now exhibited in a wonderfully perfect state of preservation in Christiania. It is a craft of the ninth century A. D.

A FUTURE PREMIER.

The English Winston Churchill is Scheduled For Such a Post.

No constructive act of the new Liberal government of Great Britain aroused more intense opposition in the parliament which has just adjourned than its plan for the self government of the conquered Transvaal. Former Premier Balfour vehemently denounced it, Lord Elgin declared it a surrender to the enemy, and Rudyard Kipling wrote a poem about it. The government's plan, as outlined in the house of commons by Winston Churchill, undersecretary for the colonies, is this: The Transvaal is to have a parliament based on equal manhood suffrage, every male of twenty-one years or over who has lived at least six months in the Transvaal to have a vote. There will be one member for each of the sixty-nine old magisterial districts, the Rand to have thirty-two, Pretoria six, Krugersdorp one and the rest of the Transvaal thirty. The first parliament will have a second chamber of fifteen members, nominated by the crown, but during the first session arrangements will be made for an elective second chamber. The members of parliament will be paid for their services, though members of the British parliament are not, and will serve five years. This plan, the government asserts, gives a square deal to both British and Boers.

WINSTON CHURCHILL OF ENGLAND.

Winston Churchill, who led the debate for the government on this important question and by his mastery of his subject greatly increased his prestige, is a son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill and the former Miss Jenny Jerome of New York, now Mrs. George Cornwallis-West. He is a descendant of the great Duke of Marlborough and a cousin of the present duke, who married Consuelo Vanderbilt. Despite his American connections, however, he is not a relative of the American Winston Churchill, though both are writers as well as politicians and have frequently been mistaken for each other. The English Winston Churchill is only thirty-two years old. It has been freely predicted that he will be premier before he is forty. His career has been spectacular since the day he left Sandhurst to enter the British army. He saw service in India, took part in the battle of Khartum, was a war correspondent in South Africa and was captured by the Boers. In 1900 he was elected to parliament. He made a great deal of money out of his life of Lord Randolph Churchill. Once an army officer said to him, "You have got on wonderfully, but you owe it all to the fact that you are Randy's son." "Sir," replied Winston, "the time is coming when Lord Randolph Churchill will be remembered chiefly as the father of Winston Churchill."

SOUTH POLE NEXT.

Count de la Vaulx and His Proposed Airship Voyage.

It is announced that the Count de la Vaulx intends to make an attempt to discover the south pole in the airship with which he is now experimenting in Paris. With Walter Wellman hunting for the north pole in one airship and the count seeking for the south pole in another ship of the atmosphere, there is a good chance for aeronauts to win all the honors to be secured at present in polar exploration. The count has been conducting a series of tests with his new air craft in Paris and at a height of about 200 feet has executed various maneuvers, making some fifty ascents and descents. The machinery worked admirably, and he declared that the ship was perfectly under his control. The count is well known in this country and was here for quite a visit not long since.

The Swordfish.

The weapon of the swordfish probably served as the model for one of the earliest forms of the sword. Many early swords, particularly among the marine nations, were edged with the teeth of sharks.

VACATIONAL.

From breakfast bell to supper bell,
 From supper bell to 9 o'clock,
 This is the part of Mrs. Pell—
 To rock and talk, and talk and rock.
 The other boarders gazed about
 In primrose paths that please them best.

But Mrs. Pell, who's rather stout,
 She came up here, she says, to rest.
 She doesn't boat, she doesn't climb,
 She never drives, she never walks,
 From rising bell to bunking time
 She talks and rocks, and rocks and talks.

The other boarders drift away—
 She talks them east, she talks them west,
 She talks and talks the livelong day,
 She came up here, she says, to rest.

Holding the best veranda chair,
 She circles daily with the sun,
 She's traveled—has been everywhere—
 Seen everything—knows everyone.
 She talks the new moon up the sky,
 She talks the songbird to his nest,
 She never stops. You wonder why,
 She came up here, she says, to rest.

The housefly buzzes on the glass,
 The brooklet chatters in the dell,
 The humbees drones in the grass—
 So drones and chatters Mrs. Pell.
 When she will stop, if stop at all,
 The dear Lord knoweth best.
 She means to stay "clear through to fall."
 She came up here, she says, to rest.

Uncle Sam's Athens.

Ex-Gov. Long's speech on the Pilgrim fathers is giving much satisfaction to the western papers, and some of those nearer home. They had grown very tired of hearing Aristides called the Just.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Miss Rockwell will again be leading woman for Richard Mansfield next season.

Reginald De Koven, the composer of "The Student King," is resting at his Newport (R. I.) villa outlining a new comic opera which he will shortly submit to Henry W. Savage.

Joseph and William Winter Jefferson have in preparation a new modern comedy called "Playing the Game," by Cleveland Moffett and Hartley Davis, to be produced next season.

Miss Louise Ford has been re-engaged by Henry W. Savage for the part of Mrs. Primley Daiselle, the professional chaperone in George Ade's college comedy, "The College Widow."

Jesse Lynch Williams, the author of "The Broken Story," from all accounts aptly named his play. While making a novel of his work his manuscript was stolen and returned after an expensive hunt by detectives.

Jess Dandy, who has played the part of Hans Wagner, the brewer from "Zinnstadt" in Pixley & Luder's ever-green musical comedy "The Prince of Pilsen" over a thousand times, will again be featured next season in this opera.

Boston does not seem to realize that in making slighting remarks about the leading industries of other American cities she is calling attention to her two ball teams, concerning which the loss said the better for Boston.—Chicago Inter Ocean.
